SCATTER THE GERMS OF THE BEAUTIFUL

Scatter the germs of the beautiful!
By the wayside let them fall,
That the rose may spring by the cottage gate
And the vine on the garden wall;
Cover the rough and the rude of earth
With a veil of leaves and flowers,
And mark with the opening bud and cup
The march of the Summer hours.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful
In the holy shrine of home;
Let the pure and the fair and the graceful there
In the loveliest lustre come;
Leave not a trace of deformity
In the temple of the heart,
But gather about its earth the germs
Of Nature and of Art.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful
In the temples of our God—
The God who starred the uplifted sky,
And flowered the trampled sod;
When He built a temple for Himself,
And a home for His priestly race,
He reared each arch in symmetry,
And curved each line in grace.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful
In the depths of the human soul;
They shall bud and blossom and bear the fruit,
While the endless ages roll;
Plant with the flowers of charity
The portals of the tomb,
And the fair and the pure about thy path
In Paradise shall bloom.

THE SQUIRE'S MISTAKE

Squire Dudley was in his garden pulling weeds in his patch of June strawberries in the morning, when he took a fancy for Ruth Lee's pretty face. She came down the road looking as fresh as a new flower in her plum calico dress and straw hat. Her brown hair cut quite short blew all about her face in little rings, and her blue eyes and bright cheeks made as pretty a picture as one often sees. Squire Dudley saw her just as she came opposite the strawberry patch, and called out, "Good morning!" in his brisk, hearty way.

"O good morning," she answered. "You startled me, Squire Dudley. I didn't see you till you spoke."

"Pleasant morning, isn't it?" said the Squire, coming up to the fence. Ruth had left the road.

"It's beautiful weather," answered Ruth. "I told mother it was too pleasant to stay indoors, and started off on a visit."

"Are your strawberries ripe yet?" said the Squire, wondering that he never had noticed what a fresh looking girl the Widow Lee's daughter had been.

"Our strawberries?" laughed Ruth. "We haven't got one. Our old rooster got in one day, about a week ago, and picked all he could eat, and then coaxed the hens in, and between them they ruined our strawberry crop."

"Too bad!" exclaimed the sympathetic Squire. "Have some of these, Ruth. They're just ripe enough to be good."

He picked some great clusters of ripe berries and handed them over the fence to her.

"Thank you," said Ruth, smiling. "How nice they are. Mother was making great calculations on her strawberry jam. She was terribly vexed when she found out what the hens had done."

"I've got lots to spare," said the Squire. "I'll send some over to your mother."

"She'd be much obliged to you," said Ruth, "if you have more than you want—"

"Plenty of them," answered the Squire, "plenty of them. Can have them just as well as not."

"I must be going," said Ruth. "Good morning."

"Good morning," returned the Squire, looking after her as she went down the road. "I declare, there isn't a girl in town that can beat Ruth Lee. I wonder some of the young fellows haven't got her away from the widow. If I was young now—"

Squire Dudley stopped suddenly. An idea had just flashed across his brain.

"I'm fifty," he said at last, after thinking quite busily for some minutes. "I'm fifty, but I don't look like it. I don't see why I shouldn't try my luck after all. Girls as young as Ruth marry an older man than I am. I wish she'd make me a good wife. Her mother is one of the tidiest women in the State, and she's brought her daughter up to know how to work, and I'm [illegible] glad of it. I'm sure we need a good housekeeper. Mrs Brown, she's old and fussy and crooked, and this way of living isn't half living. I do believe I'll marry her if she'll have me. Maybe Charley'll say it's foolish, but I can't help it."

The Squire fell to weeding out his strawberries again diligently, and kept thinking about Ruth all the while—long before dinner was ready he had fully made up his mind to propose marriage to Ruth and bring home a new housekeeper and mistress to the great house whose mistress had been laid to rest ten years or more, provided of course that Ruth didn't say no, and the Squire thought there wasn't much danger of that, though why he should be so sure, I can't say.

"Don't you think we need a housekeeper?" he said to his son Charles that afternoon, as they sat on the verandah. The Squire evidently saw some new feature in the landscape, for he kept his face turned away from Charley's as he spoke.

"A housekeeper?" asked Charley. "We've got one. What do we want of more, I should like to know?"

"Yes, I know," assented the Squire, turning red in the face, and beginning to get a little uneasy, "but Mrs Brown isn't such a woman as we need. She doesn't take any interest in the work as—as a woman would who—who had more interest in it."

After which extremely logical argument the Squire got more fidgety than ever.

"I understand that," answered Charley. "If she had a personal interest in the place, and in being prudent and keeping things up, she'd do better than she does now. Now she gets her pay for her work, and that's all she cares for. It's all we can expect of her."

"Just so," said the Squire, glad to know that Charley agreed with him so far. "I've been thinking this morning that the best thing I could do would be to get some one who would take a personal interest in matters. I don't see as you intend to get married, and if you won't I don't know but I'd better."

The Squire breathed easier. The worst part was over with.

"You get married!" exclaimed Charley in unconcealed surprise. "Why, I didn't know that you ever thought of such a thing."

"And I hadn't till this morning," explained the Squire. "I got to thinking about it this morning, and the more I thought about it the more I thought it a good plan. You haven't any objections?"

"Of course not," answered Charley. "You can do as you think best. I never found it advisable to get a wife. I have nothing to say further than the hope that you will get some one who will make you happy."

"She will," said the Squire very decidedly; "she will, I am sure."

"May I ask who it is to be?" inquired Charley.

"I haven't asked her yet," answered the Squire, "so it is a secret. I'd rather wait until I'm sure of her before I tell who it is. She might say no, you see, and I should feel rather cheap."

Toward night Squire Dudley picked a pail full of his finest strawberries, and directly after tea started off across lots in the direction of the Widow Lee's with the berries on his arm. It was dusk before he got to the widow's. He walked slowly. He had very busy thoughts for company. He was wondering whether it were best to decide—should he propose at once to Ruth, or should he see her mother first and talk with her? He concluded that the last was the wisest plan. As he opened the gate noiselessly he heard voices in the other corner of the garden, and stopped a moment to find out if it was the widow and her daughter.

"I never had any idea of it before," said a voice which he recognized as Charley's—"not the least in the world. He said he hadn't thought anything about it until to-day. I couldn't find out who he had in view. I hope it isn't old Miss Sharp. She'd like to get somebody."

The Squire burst into a profuse perspiration at the idea of having Miss Sharp for a wife.

"He said he didn't see as yet I intend to get married," went on Charley. "I didn't tell him I had got me a wife picked out, but I wanted to. I am sure he'd approve of my choice. I am [illegible]."

"What more?" laughed a pleasant voice that was Ruth's; the Squire knew the moment he heard it. "He [illegible] I'm going to be your wife, I wanted you to quit laughing at me in that silly way, pretending you are flattering me all the time."

"It's wife! Good gracious!"

The Squire was so taken by surprise that he came near dropping the strawberries. So it was all settled between them. And he had been intending proposing to his son's intended wife. He felt cold all over at the thought of it. How lucky that he did not take Charley into his confidence, and tell him who he had concluded to marry.

"I declare!" exclaimed the Squire, "I've made a mistake this time, sure enough. The rascal got the start of me. I'd like to know what I'm to do? I've told him that I intended to get married, and if I don't he'll likely ask [illegible] something. Dear me."

The Squire was in trouble. Another bright thought occurred to him. There was the widow. After all she would be nicer suited to him than Ruth would have been. She was somewhere near his own age. A fine woman. A smart woman. She would make a fine mistress for his empty house. Why shouldn't he marry her since he could not have her daughter?

"I'll do it!" exclaimed the Squire. "I'll do it. Enough with the matter since he had got so far. I'll do it."

He knocked. The door was opened by the widow, round cheeked, rosy and smiling.

"Why, Squire Dudley! Good evening," she exclaimed. "I hardly knew you at first, you haven't been here in so long. Come in. Take this rocking chair, and let me take your hat."

The widow bustled about and got the Squire a chair, and deposited his hat on the table before he happened to think of his basket.

"Oh! Ruth told me your strawberry crop had proved a failure, so I thought I'd run over and bring you a few—strawberry shortcake don't go bad this time of year."

"I'm a thousand times obliged to you," said the widow, taking the basket. "I was so provoked to think the hens should spoil mine. Such a nice lot as I would have had."

"If you want any to preserve, come over and get 'em," said the Squire. "We've plenty of 'em. Mrs Brown, she won't do anything with 'em except as we use them in the season of them, I suppose."

"I want to know," exclaimed the widow. "You ought to have them done up. They're so nice in the winter. I would like to get some for you, and if Mrs Brown won't take care of them I'll do them up on shares."

"I wish you would," said the Squire. "Things are all going to wreck and ruin about my place. That's to be expected. A hired woman will take no interest in affairs," and here he sighed deeply.

"No, that's so."

It was strange that the Squire had not found out how things were going to wreck and ruin before. Mrs Brown had been there ever since Mrs Dudley died.

The Squire and the widow kept up a very brisk conversation, and at the end of an hour he was more deeply in love with her than he had been with her beautiful daughter, and began to wonder how he had been so blind as to overlook such a delightful woman so long.

By and by the widow bustled out and came back with a pitcher of last year's cider and a plate of cake.

"Do have something to eat and drink," urged the widow. "If I'd known you were coming I'd have made a cherry pie. I remember you used to like my cherry pies."

"I—I wish you'd come and make cherry pies for me all your life," blurted out the Squire, turning very red in the face again. "I—I came down to ask you to marry me, Mrs Lee."

After which innocent falsehood the Squire felt decidedly relieved.

"I'm sure I'd as lief marry you as any man," answered the widow, blushing, and looking as pretty as a rose.

"It's all settled then," cried the delighted Squire, and kissed her plump on her lips just as the door opened and Charley and Ruth came in.

"Allow me to make you acquainted with my new housekeeper," said the Squire, bowing very low to hide his red face.

"And allow me to present my wife—that is to be," answered Charley. "You take the mother and I'll take the daughter."

I am happy to say that under the new administration things are no longer going to wreck and ruin.

THE DRESS OF CIVILIZED WOMEN

[illegible] I think it would be better to be a cannibal at once than to rise every morning for some forty or fifty years and box myself up in a sort of cage [illegible] supported by the roots of the [illegible] in the whole duty of woman [illegible] seventeen months out of the twenty-four [illegible] such disadvantages they can work [illegible] courage, but very little [illegible]

A [illegible] American [illegible] relates the following anecdote:

The morning following the battle of Yorktown I had the curiosity to attend the dressing of the wounded, among others whose limbs were so injured as to require amputation was a musician who had received a ball in the knee. [illegible] preparations were made to lash him down to the table to prevent the possibility of his moving. Says the man: "Now, doctor, what would you be at?"

"My lad, I am going to take off your leg, and it is necessary you should be lashed down."

"I'll consent to no such thing. You may pluck the heart from my bosom, but you'll not confine me. Is there a fiddle in the camp? If so, bring it to me."

A violin was furnished, and after tuning it he said: "Now, doctor, begin," and he continued to play until the operation, which took about forty minutes, was completed, without missing a note or moving a muscle.

1ST DR LADY.—Capt Hughes and Joe Alexander were on their way to [illegible] City. We all know that Hughes is a Greeley man while Alexander is for Grant. On the train a discussion arose between them as to the politics of the passengers, and [illegible] the conductor was requested to canvass the train. [illegible] returned with the following result: Greeley [illegible]. "There is another vote for Grant that I haven't counted. It was cast by a lady."

"God bless the lady," exclaimed Alexander, jumping up. "Where is she? I want to kiss her."

"Hush!" said [illegible] "It is Mrs Grant!" shouted Hughes [illegible] farther end of the car [illegible] of Alexander [illegible]

And further deponent saith not.—[illegible] Democrat.

A SHEEP STORY.—There is a [illegible] bridge at [illegible] 60 feet above the high [illegible]. A drover recently attempted to drive a thousand sheep across it. When about half way over, the bell-wether noticed an open window, and recognizing his long [illegible] the sunlight, he at once [illegible] critical condition, and stretched toward each cardinal point of the compass he uttered a plaintive "Maa," and descended to his fate. The next sheep and the next followed, imitating the gesture and the remark of the leader. For hours it rained sheep. The crystal placid stream was incarnadine with the blood of moribund mutton, and not until the last of the last sheep disappeared through the window [illegible] to a wicked world, did the movement cease.

ORIGIN OF LADIES' STAYS.—Stays were first invented by a brutal butcher of the thirteenth century as a punishment for his wife. She was very loquacious, and finding nothing that would cure her, he put a pair of stays on her in order to take away her breath and so prevent, as he thought, her talking. This cruel punishment was inflicted by other husbands till at last there was scarcely a wife in all London who was not condemned to wear the stays. The punishment became so universal at last that the ladies in their own defence made a fashion of it, and so it has continued to the present day.

A MICHIGAN schoolmaster says: "I will spell any man, woman or child in the hull State fur a dickshunary or kash prize of one hundred dollars aside, the money to be awarded by a kommittee of clergymen or skool directors. There has been a darned site of blowin' about my spellin', now I want them to put me up or to shut up. I wont be put down by a passel of ignamusses because I differ with noah webster's stile of spellin'."

GIVE work rather than alms to the poor. The former drives out indolence, the latter industry.

PLAYING INDIAN

A New York man is very much annoyed because his two boys have read so many Indian stories that they have gone wild with anxiety to play Indian and to go out in the prairies hunting for the noble red man. The man was taking a nap after dinner, in his easy chair, when he was awakened by an alarming noise and a strange sensation in his head. He jumped up suddenly and found that one of his boys, dressed in a red table cloth, and with his nose decorated with blue paint, was trying to scalp his father with a carving knife, while the other boy, attired in a blanket shawl and rooster feathers, flourished a hatchet and emitted a war whoop from behind a thicket composed of two chairs and a round table. The infuriated father [illegible] to put a stop to this kind of thing. So next day, while the boys were playing with bows and arrows in the garden, he dressed himself in Indian costume and jumped over the fence with a wild and horrid yell, for the purpose of frightening those children. The old fellow, however, lost his ground, and drawing an arrow to the head, in which was inserted a [illegible], [illegible] He took to flight. That night the father walked up stairs on crutches, and [illegible] the family all around [illegible] He is thinking now of some other way [illegible] of the sanguinary aspirations of his offspring.

THERE is now, if not pending, at least impending, in Philadelphia one of the oddest suits ever brought before a civilized and Christian tribunal. A [illegible] young gentleman of that city, B [illegible] young lady of Boston. They met, loved and agreed to wed. After the engagement [illegible]

THE GROWTH OF BERLIN.—A French journal, the [illegible], draws attention to the wonderful growth of Berlin during the last two centuries, and declares it to be the most important city in all Germany, which it has beyond question [illegible]. The augmentation of its population, says the writer, corresponds with each of the steps which the house of Hohenzollern has made towards the domination of Germany. In 1640, when the Grand Elector [illegible], it contained only 6,000 souls; in 1786, at the death of Frederick the Great, there were [illegible] inhabitants [illegible] Napoleon [illegible] 172,000 in 1815; by the year 1860 the number had grown to half a million. Since the battle of Sadowa and the events which have marked [illegible] growth, [illegible] the population of Berlin is now said to be considerably greater than that [illegible]

A NEW RIFLE.—The Cologne Gazette is enabled to state that an improved [illegible] Mauser [illegible] definitely selected as the German infantry weapon of the future. [illegible] The original has, however, been so largely improved upon that the new gun hardly deserves to bear [illegible] name. The weapon is highly spoken of. Even before its recent improvements, it could be fired twenty-six times a minute, [illegible] which is twice more than the [illegible] The ball is constructed on the conical system and the cartridges used [illegible] It is lighter and [illegible] than the Chassepot, and answers in [illegible] respects it surpasses.

A CLERGYMAN had a fondness for long words, and undertook to instruct one of his church officers in the use of them. One night, as they were about to leave the vestry, John asked the minister if he should put out the candles. "Put out! Say extinguish," answered the clergyman. "Aa," said John, "does extinguish always stand for put out?" "Always," replied the minister. Next Sunday it happened that a dog began to bark in the church. John rose in his seat and solemnly gave the order, "Some one will please to extinguish that dog."

A MAN in Pennsylvania has invented a rat trap that is made to operate upon the selfish passions of the poor rat and lure him into trouble. A mirror is set in the back part of the device beyond the bait, and as his ratship is out on a foraging expedition he espies the bait, and at the same time he believes his own image in the mirror to be another rat making for it on the opposite side. This is too much for rat nature to stand, and he [illegible], so he rushes for the bait and is caught.

A TALK WITH A HENGLISHMAN.—I talked with a cockney from Her Majesty's dominions.

Says I, "Where are you going?"
Says he, "To hide a hoe."
Says I, "What are you going to hide a hoe for?"
Says he, "I did not say hide a hoe. I said hide a hoe."
Says I, "Spell it."
Says he, "I-d-a-h-o."
"Oh!" says I, "Idaho."
"Yes," says he, "Hide a hoe."

A YOUNG man idle is an old man needy.

HELP YOURSELF

Fight your own battles. Hoe your own row. Ask no favors of any one, and you'll succeed five thousand times better than one who is always beseeching some one's influence and patronage. No one will ever help you as you can help yourself, because no one will be so heartily interested in your affairs. The first step will not be such a long one, perhaps, but carving your own way up the mountain, you make each one lead to another, and stand firm while you chop still another out. Men who have made fortunes are not those who have had [illegible] thousand dollars given to them to start with, but boys who have started with a well-earned dollar or two. Men who have acquired fame have never been thrust into popularity by puffs begged or paid for, or given in friendly spirit. They have outstretched their own hands and touched the public heart. Men who win love do their own wooing, and I never knew a man to fail so signally as one who induced his affectionate grandmother to speak a good word for him. Whether you work for fame, for love, for money, or for anything else, work with your hands and heart and brain. Say "I will," and some day you will conquer. Never let any man have it to say, "I have dragged you up." Too many friends sometimes hurt a man more than none at all.

THE bridge now in course of construction over the Firth of Tay, and linking the towns of Newport and Dundee, Scotland, will be, it is said, the longest in the world—longer even than the famous Victoria Bridge at Montreal, by over one thousand feet. If the Tay bridge were eighty yards longer it would be two miles exactly, and to all intents and purposes it may therefore be called a two-mile bridge. It will have ninety piers and eighty-nine spans. The greatest height of this bridge will be eighty-eight feet above high water mark, which is not half the elevation of the East River bridge at New York. The total cost of the structure will be $1,750,000, and its whole construction in all its details has been undertaken by one firm.

A [illegible] lady [illegible] widow lady in town. Her husband died far away from home, and it took so long for his remains to reach New York that his [illegible] was giving a lunch party when they finally arrived. A wagon drew up to the door, and a long box was handed out. Curiosity ran high among the ladies at the window, and with one accord they exclaimed:

"Why, Mrs Jones, what on earth is that?"

Up went Mrs Jones's eyeglass, and after a glance she coolly said:

"Why, it must be Jones come home. Chris, run down and open the door for your father."

A LADY who had received a severe bite in her arm from a dog went to Dr Abernethy, but knowing of his aversion to hear the statement of particulars, she merely uncovered the injured part and held it before him in silence. After examining it the [illegible] inquired:

"Scratch?"
"Bite," says the lady.
"Cat?" inquired the doctor.
"Dog," replied the lady.

So delighted was the doctor with the brevity and promptness of the lady's answers that he exclaimed: "Zounds, madam, you are the most sensible woman I have met with in all my life."

A YOUNG man went into town some time ago and bought half a dozen shirts which opened at the back. He took them because the storekeeper assured him that they were in the very latest style, and he wore them every [illegible] months, buttoning them in front, with the [illegible] between his shoulders, until somebody happened to see him in his shirt sleeves and explained the situation, as it were, to him. He said he thought it was awful queer they had put so much elaborate work on the back, but he was bound to be in the fashion at any sacrifice.

A YOUNG Briton lately lost a large sum by betting on spiders. He wagered that a spider which he would produce would cross a plate quicker than a spider to be produced by a friend. Each spider was to have its own plate. His spider, however, on being started, would not stir, whilst his rival ran with infamous speed. The bet was consequently lost, and the loser soon found out the reason why—his friend had a hot plate.

THE corner stone of a monument commemorative of the great fire in Chicago was laid in the Central Park, four miles west of that city, on the 30th ult. Relics of the fire, principally iron safes, are to be used in its construction. The base is to be composed of safes contributed by Chicago merchants, the whole terminated by a gothic column surmounted by a female figure holding aloft in both hands a flaming torch.

THE Titusville Press says:

"Titusville was not the birth place of 'the Father of his Country,' but we have a man residing here who slipped upon a muddy crossing this forenoon and sat down on a roll of butter which he was carrying home, and, instead of swearing, he simply arose, and scraped the butter from his pants into the paper again as if nothing had happened."

BIG boy comes up and holds out his hand sullen and savage. Noble little boy comes manfully forward and says, "I'm the boy that whistled, sir," at the same time holding out his hand. Teacher simmers down and lets both of them off. Moral—Noble boy thought teacher wouldn't thrash him if he told the truth, but he knew big boy would if he didn't.

"WHAT time is it, my dear?" asked a wife of her husband, whom she suspected of being drunk, but who was doing his best to look sober. "Well, my darling, I cannot tell you, as you see there are two hands on my watch, and each points to a different figure, and I don't know which to believe."

A NARROW ESCAPE.—A Dutchman was relating his marvelous escape from drowning, when thirteen of his companions were lost by the upsetting of a boat, and he alone was saved.

"And how did you escape their fate?" asked one of his hearers.

"I tid not co in te pote!" was the Dutchman's placid answer.

A HORRIBLE FATE

A MAN FALLS FROM A BALLOON 300 FEET TO THE EARTH.—The following particulars of the terrific fall of a man from a balloon which ascended from the DeKalb (Illinois) Fair Grounds on Friday week, are given by a paper of that town:

Mr Denniston, the aeronaut who advertised that Mr [illegible] Durham would make an ascension at this place this afternoon, was inflating his monster balloon "City of New York," and had nearly completed the inflating process, when people on the north part of the grounds discovered smoke escaping from the top of the balloon. It was scarcely visible at first, but faster and faster emitted the smoke, and the alarm was given, but hardly had the detection in the air ship become apparent before flames were issuing from the very top of the balloon. Quickly the shout went up, "The balloon is on fire," and as those near by began to retreat, the horses were also driven here and there to escape all danger. The dry cambric and its coverings began burning first slowly, then the flames spread, and upward and onward went the fire, a premonition by this time overtaking the spectators—every one present feeling that some fearful if not fatal calamity would result. Scarcely had the flames burst out, however, before an opening of two or three feet was made—where the guy rope holding the unwieldy thing crossed it—and now the rope burns off and away to the southward shoots the balloon, carrying with it in its course Mr Michael McMinn, a laborer assisting in the inflation. Being near the basket as it started off, he became entangled, and hanging with one foot inside the basket, his hands holding to the ropes, he thus ascended for perhaps a hundred feet, and regained a position in the basket, which again hung sideways, and in another minute he was hanging to the ropes alone at a height of probably not less than 300 feet. Now his strength gives way, his presence of mind deserts him, and in a moment the poor man is seen falling to the earth—an awful, a painful sight, filling with horror and consternation the four or five hundred spectators on the grounds. But the suspense was for only a moment. As it were, he who but a little time before was in the enjoyment of his faculties had descended to the earth nearly in a standing position from 300 feet in air, until when near to the earth, he fell backward, striking the ground with his back with such force as to produce a concussion heard some distance away, and Mr McMinn, familiarly known as "Big Mike," was dead—utterly crushed, the blood streaming from his mouth and nostrils. It was a [illegible], the like of which we hope never again to behold, and thus ended what was intended to be a day of sport. McMinn left a wife and several children who depended upon his labors for a living. May God comfort them in their sore affliction.

The balloon alighted but a few rods outside of the fair grounds, and was soon consumed, a loss of several hundred dollars to Mr Denniston, but nothing as compared with the dreadful destruction its ascension wrought.

IN 1824 Hon Thomas H Benton declared in a report to Congress that a President controlling the annual expenditure of $15,000,000 could corrupt the country and carry the elections. Under Grant's administration $150,000,000 are collected annually, and the Government patronage is used to organize and control voters without stint or scruple. To the purse has been added the sword, while the one is used to purchase and corrupt, the other intimidates and coerces.

1876 CENTENNIAL EXHIBITION

On the [illegible] day of March, 1871, the [illegible] Congress [illegible] providing for celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of American independence by holding an international exhibition of arts, manufactures and products of the soil and mine in the city of Philadelphia and State of Pennsylvania, in the year 1876, and [illegible] of a commission to be composed of one delegate from each State and Territory, to be appointed by the President on the nomination of the Governors of the States and Territories respectively [illegible] that the United States [illegible] be called upon to defray any of the expenses of the exhibition, no resource was left the Commission for funds but an appeal to the public, and to give this appeal form [illegible] act of [illegible] June 1, 1872, was passed by this [illegible] corporation under the name of "The Centennial Board of Finance" was created, to consist of one [illegible] of each State and Territory [illegible] and further [illegible] the stock to the amount of $10,000,000 in shares of $10 each, and [illegible] an amount equal to the capital stock and to have generally the usual [illegible] powers, [illegible] to the [illegible] United States Centennial Commission [illegible]

[illegible]

...London in 1851, international exhibitions have been recognized as uniting the most potential and far reaching agencies for promoting the progress and the material interests of mankind ever devised, and they are always especially beneficial to the country in which they are held. The late William H. Seward, when Secretary of State, said of them, in communicating to Congress the United States reports on the Paris Exposition of 1867:

"Their beneficial influences are many and wide; they advance human knowledge in all directions. Through the universal language of the products of labor, the interests of all countries are held in common, prejudices are broken down, nations are fraternized, generous rivalries in the peaceful fields of industry are excited, the bonds of [illegible] are [illegible] and a better understanding between capital and labor is fostered.

"One of their most salutary results is the promotion of an appreciation of the true dignity of labor, and its paramount claims to consideration as the basis of national wealth and power. Such exhibitions have become national necessities and duties."

Great Britain, France, and other leading powers have instructed and entertained the world with such exhibitions. Austria is rapidly completing one which will open in 1873, and it is eminently appropriate that America should assert her place in this respect as the [illegible] of nations, the powers most actively contributing to the advancement of mankind.

At a meeting of this body held in the city of Philadelphia on the 7th instant, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That all national banks and other incorporated banking or savings institutions in the State are hereby requested and authorized to act as agents to receive subscriptions to the stock [illegible] incorporated banks or savings institutions [illegible] the corporation representing such counties shall designate private banks or bankers to act as agents for such purpose, and [illegible] Executive Commissioner [illegible] private bankers in the district as he may deem advisable. All agents appointed shall receive subscriptions in accordance with the rules adopted by the United States Centennial Commission.

It is confidently hoped and believed that the banks so appointed will cheerfully accept the patriotic duty for which they have been selected, and in this way aid the important work [illegible] will be promptly supplied with subscription books [illegible] the people may subscribe for stock.

We are now called upon to take our quota of the stock, which has been apportioned according to the act of Congress of June 1, 1872, on the basis of population, and amounts to [illegible] shares at ten dollars per share, [illegible] $91[illegible]. The population of the State being 3,52[illegible].

[illegible] prospective profits from the investment in this stock. The promptings of patriotism and a noble [illegible] should actuate us.

Money is the first and pressing element of success in the prosecution of the work of the Centennial Commission, and it must be secured within the present year for the exhibition to be international, and [illegible] the marvelous stages of human industry, art, and natural products, as well as all the [illegible] results of human [illegible]

THE PHILADELPHIA POST-OFFICE

A day or two since a formidable delegation composed of the principal members of the Philadelphia ring went over to Washington flushed with an idea of their importance, and fully expecting that Grant would surrender at their first command and appoint the man of their choice to the important position of postmaster in the city of brotherly love. Cameron headed the gang, with his henchman Hartranft; following these were Mayor Stokeley, Marshal Kerns, Sheriff Leeds, City Treasurer [illegible], District Attorney Mann, Assessor Elliott, Congressmen Harmer and O'Neill, Fire Commissioner Porter, the whole body of the roosters and [illegible] elected to the lower branch of the State Legislature and a [illegible] others of lesser renown. According to the Lancaster Intelligencer it was [illegible] gathering of the ring, a full collection of its leaders and representative men.

Cameron had promised in advance that one Fairman should be postmaster, and upon that promise the ring relied with implicit confidence. But this is "the bulwarks of political expectations." Mr. Drexel, Mr. Geo. W. Childs and a few more of the rich men of Philadelphia had reached the ear of Grant in advance.

With an air of wonderful dignity and a look of wisdom that would have done credit to the first Ulysses, the President heard the spokesman of Cameron. Then, in what the reporters describe as a voice of marked firmness, the dispenser of offices announced to the assembled representatives of the Philadelphia ring that he could not cast aside the civil service rules and regulations—that he would appoint Mr. Fairman. To this declaration the ring leaders listened in absolute amazement. Time and again these rules had been violated at the dictation of just such politicians as those then assembled in the executive mansion, and the President had not seemed to feel any scruples of conscience about the matter. But Grant was firm now. He must keep his promise to the rich men of Philadelphia, regardless of the wishes of Cameron and his ring, and he will no doubt do so. Of course Fairman is jubilant, and of course the old Winnebago chief is furious. This action of Grant may cost Cameron dearly. If the legislative ring should conclude that Cameron has lost his influence with the President they will either refuse to make him Senator or ask enormous prices for their votes. Money is the potent means by which Cameron has won all his political triumphs, and he ought not to blame Grant for yielding to the dictation of the moneyed men of Philadelphia.

—A Press correspondent says: "All the way from the White House to Willard's Hotel the disappointed crowd cursed the civil service rules and regulations. Not a few of them openly denounced the President. The good humored Theodore Walton, who was for Fairman, and therefore felt happy, said, 'There is no use in denouncing the President, he is in for four more years, and you can't hurt him.'

Another of the party remarked: "This is what we get for working like the devil to elect Grant, and for risking a term in the workhouse to carry the city for Hartranft." Some of the more enraged of the party went so far as to say: "If the civil service rules and regulations were applied to Grant, I'll be—if he would be in the White House.'"

PENNSYLVANIA RESERVES—[illegible].—The next Re-Union of the Pennsylvania Reserves will be held at Gettysburg in May or June. Several hundred of those connected with that organization during the war are expected to be present. The occasion will be signalized by special honor to the memory of the late commander of the Army of the Potomac, General George G. Meade, embracing eulogies by prominent military orators.

—In this connection [illegible] suggestion [illegible] a movement for a monument commemorative of the services of the eminent General, to be placed upon the field of his greatest battle would be most fitting at that Re-Union. Philadelphia will perpetuate his name in some enduring form in the city's Park. Nothing could be more appropriate than a similar memorial at Gettysburg. The Reserves can make the idea a success, if they will but resolve to enter upon it.

TO THE LADIES.—Will those parties in town, who have so kindly responded to the call made last week, remember that Tuesday, Dec. 3d, is the day appointed for the dinner. They are requested to send all their contributions to Gen. W. McClellan's Hotel, not later than 11 o'clock of that morning. Ladies will be in readiness to receive the articles, and it is desirable that everything from town shall be sent there cooked and ready for immediate use. 1t

THE HORSE MALADY.—SOME OF ITS EFFECTS.—The horse disease (epizootic [illegible]) is spreading over the country westward and southward, and has [illegible] reached every locality. In cities first visited, a large proportion of the animals attacked have recovered; others worked too early or too hard have had [illegible]. Dropsy has set in at New York, Brooklyn, Boston, and other places, and it is reported that fifty per cent of these cases are proving fatal.

In this place a majority of the horses [illegible] but none have died. The same is the case throughout the county. [illegible] the worst cases [illegible] be those where bleeding had been resorted to in treatment. Several horses here have entirely recovered, but when to use them is a puzzling question with their owners. It is the opinion of some that the present clear and cold weather is operating as a check upon the disease.

The inconvenience and loss resulting from this malady cannot be estimated. Business is affected in a hundred ways, and business men everywhere are beginning to feel it. Even the printer suffers. Country people failing to come to town with their teams, leaves him without produce, to [illegible] money, and so with other classes. The inconvenience may be understood from the fact that the Sheriff of the county is compelled, for the want of sound horseflesh, to [illegible] foot [illegible] in the execution of his official duties. A few days ago Sheriff Klunk walked to [illegible] next day he [illegible] Middletown, and at this time the Sheriff [illegible] [illegible]

WILL OF MRS. [illegible].—The will of Mrs. [illegible], who died at her residence about four miles North of this city about ten days ago, has been admitted to probate. She gives $[illegible] to Mt. Olivet Cemetery, to be placed in some bank to remain there forever, the interest of which is to be paid to the keeper of the Cemetery, provided he keep her grave in order. She gives $[illegible] to each of her nephews and nieces, it being one six or seven in number; she gives her old watch and $100 to Joseph P. Fleming; to Samuel P. [illegible] are her Executors.—[Frederick Examiner.

ANOTHER BARN BURNED.—On Sunday night last about one o'clock, a large bank barn on the property of Mr. John D. [illegible], a few miles south of town, was destroyed by fire. Mr. [illegible] had purchased the property a short time ago at assignee's sale, being the property of Michael Bush, though Mr. [illegible] has no deed of the farm. The barn was valued at about $2,000, on which there was an insurance of $1,000 in the Paradise Fire Insurance Company. About 200 bushels of wheat, 800 bushels of corn, 12 tons of hay, straw, reaper, buggy and farming implements were also consumed, being the property of Mr. Bush. The origin of the fire is a mystery, as no one of the family had been at the barn since the early part of the evening. This is now the second barn destroyed by fire in that neighborhood during the past few weeks. Suspicion is attached to several stragglers who have been prowling through that vicinity the last few months.—[Hanover Citizen, 14th.

ENTERTAINING LECTURE.—The Rev. Dr. B. B. Hamlin will deliver a lecture entitled "Learning to Read," in Gettysburg, Thursday evening, Dec. [illegible]. This is the first time Dr. Hamlin will have visited our town, and we hope he will have a crowded house. As an eloquent and powerful preacher, he has few superiors in the land. In his best moods in the pulpit he is not excelled by Mr. Beecher or Bishop Simpson. Those who have heard him in his finest efforts will endorse this statement. A few years ago Pennsylvania College conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity. At the late General Conference at Brooklyn his friends were eager to have him made one of the Bishops in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and he received a handsome vote for that office. The lecture is full of the keenest wit and humor, and abounds in glowing, pure, and genuine eloquence. A rare treat is in store for our lecture-going public.

RAILROAD PROJECTS.—It has been decided to run the Pen[illegible] Railroad to York—[illegible]

The following is among the latest railroad projects. A Shippensburg paper says:

"For some days past no little commotion and surprise has been manifested among our citizens at the sudden appearance of a corps of railroad engineers, who under apparent leave or license, commenced on Monday morning to make the preliminary survey of a railroad from this point eastward. After inquiry we find the gentlemen in charge of the work perfectly competent, [illegible] and are contemplating, which is to be built by the authority of an act of the Legislature of Pennsylvania, incorporating it, [illegible] approved the fifth day of April, 1870, together with supplements thereto [illegible] respectively May 18, 1871, March [illegible], 187[illegible]. It is the purpose of the company to construct and equip the main line of its railroad, extensions of the main line and branches, the same being [illegible] Licking Creek in Fulton county. The main line commencing at a point on the Maryland line where the said line crosses Licking Creek and southwest corner of Franklin county, and by way of said Licking Creek Valley, and the extension of the said main line eastwardly through the counties of Huntingdon, Fulton, Franklin, Adams, York, Lancaster, Chester, Delaware, Montgomery, City of Philadelphia, and Bucks county, at a point on the Delaware river at or near Morrisville, in said county, in length about one hundred and ninety-eight miles [illegible] Company. It will be noticed in the foregoing that Cumberland county is not mentioned in the proposed route, yet the line would [illegible] upon the map places Shippensburg directly on it. Why this omission we might [illegible] to surmise. From this [illegible] the line takes an easterly course through Pine Grove, and thence to York.

It is the purpose of the Company to construct [illegible] narrow gauge [illegible] [illegible] Somerset county [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] City of Philadelphia. The main line with its branches will be about two hundred and twenty [illegible] miles in length [illegible] west of the Susquehanna [illegible]. Besides the mineral deposits in the [illegible] [illegible] the State."

The Company expect to build the road on a loan of $[illegible] secured by first and [illegible] mortgage at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, payable in gold, semi-annually, clear of State and United States taxes, on the first days of April and October."

FATAL ACCIDENT.—We are indebted to a friend in [illegible] township for the following particulars of a [illegible] accident which occurred in that township. A young man by the name of John T. Hartlick, aged about eighteen years, son of Lewis Hartlick, went out gunning on last Saturday in company with Daniel Hardisho. THE WARNING HAS BEEN HEEDED.—Since the exposure of the attempts made by certain unscrupulous local dealers to palm off their coarse astringents, made from cheap and impure materials, in the place of the great national tonic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, public opinion has set strongly against these empirics and their preparations. Their occupation is gone, or soon will be. When the light is let into deception it soon wilts down. Persons who trifle with their own health, by using unknown preparations, with no guarantee to sustain them, when an established specific, proven by twenty years' experience to be exactly what it is claimed to be, is within their reach, [illegible] sure to repent their temerity. Many [illegible] so in this instance, but it is hoped [illegible] the truth plainly spoken has arrested the evil. In the meantime the demand for the leading protective and restorative medicine of America was never so great as it has been this season. From the fever and ague districts of the west, south west, and south, it is literally overwhelming, and it may be said of the advices from all parts of the country of the cures it is effecting in dyspepsia, bilious complaints, and chronic constipation, that "their name is legion." Everywhere the sick and feeble seem to have realized the importance of "holding fast that which is good," and of avoiding what is spurious and dangerous.

The numerous "Bitters," under various names, which mercenary dealers endeavor to substitute for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, should be avoided, for their own sakes, by the sick and public at large. Hostetter's Bitters are procurable in bottles only, and never sold in bulk.

Many horses in Philadelphia, Washington, New York, Brooklyn, Raleigh and elsewhere, are dying of dropsy, following the previous horse disease. Examination shows that their lungs are eaten away. Many of them drop dead in the streets.

CAUTION AND [illegible].—Invalids beware, if you are unwise enough to put yourself outside of any of the rum-tonics guaranteed to contain "no diffusive stimulant," you will inevitably come to grief. Ask your physician if any liquor preparation, destitute of stimulating properties, is worthy of the name of a tonic. He will tell you no. Shun all such nauseous catch-pennies. Plantation Bitters, the most wholesome invigorant in the world, owes the rapidity with which it relieves the disordered stomach and the shattered nerves to the diffusive agent which conveys its medicinal ingredients to the seat of the complaint. That agent is the spirit of the sugar cane, the most nutritious and agreeable of all the varieties of alcohol. The medicinal ingredients of the Bitters, valuable as they are, would be comparatively useless without this distributive basis. They would ferment and sour. Beware, as you hope for health, of the horrible compounds of refuse drugs in a state of fermentation which humbugs are endeavoring to foist upon the public as medicines. 1t

THE Pennsylvania Railroad Company offer a reward of ten thousand dollars, and a lifetime pass over all their lines, for information leading to the arrest of the villains who removed a rail of the track, near Garret Siding, Chester county, causing the death of an engineer and fireman several weeks ago.

A NEW FEATURE IN THE HORSE DISEASE.—Within the last few days the horse disease, which has caused so much trouble in the thousands of stables in this city, has developed a new phase, especially in the city railroad stables, and among those horses which had the least discharge from the nostrils. The general supposition is that the matter, instead of being discharged, passed into the system and now produces a species of dropsy, the animal's legs and body swelling to an enormous size. Several animals have already died in great pain from this new development of the disease. The treatment adopted is rubbing the swollen parts with a liniment composed of camphor, hartshorn, and sweet oil, and light doses of physic. Several valuable horses which have had the disease, and to all appearances had recovered from it, have, on being taken out and driven with some speed on the road, been taken with a relapse from which they have died. Owners of valuable horses had better entirely discontinue the use of their stock, and not drive them any more until next spring.—N. Y. World.

A CITY exchange says: "The horse epidemic has had one good result; people have discovered that legs were made to walk with. The number of women who have found out that they can go on shopping expeditions without a carriage, and of men who now know that they can reach their places of business without a horse car, has been materially increased. There is a great deal of pedestrian ability in this country which has never been developed. Nobody can understand how quickly he can get from one point to another on his own legs, until he tries, and that cannot be considered altogether a misfortune which compels him to make the trial."

A MILL STOPPED BY EELS.—Last week a most remarkable stoppage of a mill by eels clogging the wheel occurred at Handley's mill, below Spring Hill, in this county. The mill stopped, and the miller, upon searching out the cause, found the wheel was clogged by eels to the quantity of several bushels, which had gotten into it and stopped it from turning. It was cleaned out, and was clogged several times again during the day. Some of the eels were two or three feet long.—Staunton Vindicator.

IT is reported that a terrible disease has broken out among the poultry along the line of the Hudson river, that chickens are dying by hundreds, and that turkeys, geese and ducks in the New York markets show signs of the malady. It appears to be assuming the form of a destructive pestilence among domestic fowl. A later dispatch reports that several health inspectors say that there is no disease among the chickens in New York city, and that people need have no apprehension in regard to eating them.

AN HONEST PROTEST.—The Golden Era, in speaking of the late frauds in our elections says:

"This ballot brigandage in a country like ours is worse than highway robbery. It is robbery of the rights and privileges of citizenship. It is Ku Kluxism at the polls. It is a crime against the public peace and order, an assault upon the majesty of public opinion and conscience, a step toward anarchy. Let it go unrebuked and unpunished, and it will lead us into despotism if not to a lower depth. The Administration that resorts to such criminal methods to secure a re-election is too dangerous to be entrusted with power another month, and would hardly hesitate to go one step further and decide to do so, and abolish elections altogether."

THE majority for Greeley in Maryland is eleven hundred and seventy votes, a result entirely and altogether owing to the remarkable tendency exhibited by some of our friends to stay at home on election day. We imagine that it will not take much argument to prove the fact that it is impossible for the Democracy, no matter what may be their actual numerical strength, to succeed at the polls without taking the trouble to go there and vote—a lesson that will no doubt be seriously studied before another election comes upon us.—Balt. Gazette.

FOUTZ'S CELEBRATED HORSE AND CATTLE POWDERS.

This preparation, long and favorably known, will thoroughly re-invigorate broken down and low-spirited HORSES, by strengthening and cleansing the stomach and intestines.

It is a sure preventive of all diseases incident to this animal, such as LUNG FEVER, GLANDERS, YELLOW WATER, HEAVES, COUGHS, DISTEMPER, FEVERS, FOUNDER, LOSS OF APPETITE AND VITAL ENERGY, &c. Its use improves the wind, increases the appetite—gives a smooth and glossy skin—and transforms the miserable skeleton into a fine-looking and spirited horse.

To keepers of COWS this preparation is invaluable. [illegible]

GRAND GIFT CONCERT.

Postponed to December 7, 1872.

The second Grand Gift Concert in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky, announced for September 28, has been postponed to December 7, 1872, because the accumulation of orders in the few days before the drawing made it physically impossible to fill them without a few days' delay, and as a short postponement was inevitable, it was determined to select a time that would insure a full drawing, sure by the sale of all the tickets.

The money necessary to pay in full all the offered gifts is now upon deposit in the Farmers and Drovers Bank, as will be seen by the following certificate of the cashier:

FARMERS AND DROVERS BANK, LOUISVILLE, KY., Sept. 26, 1872.

This is to certify that there is now on deposit in this bank over half a million of dollars to the credit of the Gift Concert fund, $500,000 of which is held by this bank as Treasurer of the Public Library of Kentucky to pay off all gifts to be awarded at the drawing.

R. S. VEECH, Cashier.

1,000 Prizes, amounting to

will be awarded, the highest prizes being $100,000, $50,000, $25,000, and down in regular gradation to $100, which is the lowest.

The drawing will positively and unequivocally take place December 7. Agents are peremptorily required to close sales and make returns November 25, in order to give ample time for the final arrangements. Orders for tickets or applications for circulars should be addressed to

is now treating successfully

Consumption, Bronchitis,

and all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, with his

COMPOUND MEDICATED INHALATIONS, CONCENTRATED FOOD, AND COUGH SYRUP.

During the past ten years Dr. Carpenter has treated and cured thousands of cases of the above named Diseases, and has now in his possession thousands of cures from every part of the country. THE INHALATION is breathed directly into the lungs, soothing and healing every inflamed surface, entering into the blood. It imparts vitality as it penetrates to every part of the system. The sensation is not unpleasant, and the first inhalation often gives a decided relief, particularly when there is much difficulty of breathing. Under the influence of my remedies, the cough soon grows easier, the night sweats cease, the hectic flush vanishes, and with improving digestion the patient rapidly gains strength and health is again within his grasp.

THE CONCENTRATED FOOD rapidly builds up the most debilitated patient, presenting to the stomach food all ready to be assimilated and made into good rich healthy blood.

THE COUGH SYRUP is to be taken at night to allay the cough and enable the patient to obtain sleep. Full directions accompany each box of my remedies, which consists of One Inhaler, One Bottle of Alterative Inhalant, One Bottle of Soothing Lozenge Inhalant, One Bottle of Anti-Hemorrhage Inhalant, One Bottle Concentrated Food, One Bottle of Cough Syrup.

Price of Box containing remedies to last one month, $10. Two months, $18; three months, $25.

GREAT EXCITEMENT

At East Berlin!

ALBERT TSCHOP

Informs the Farmers and public in general, that he has completed his

LARGE NEW MACHINE SHOP

and introduced STEAM POWER, and is now building the celebrated

which took the Premiums at the late Fairs.

This machine I can attach to any common thresher, and it will run very little harder than it did before the attachment was made, four or five horses can work it with ease. It is the only machine that shakes all the grain from the straw and cleans it thoroughly, putting it in bags ready for the market. All the machines are warranted to do this, or no sale, and the price so low that it is in reach of every farmer. It will save you much time, grain and money. When you are done threshing you are done cleaning, and have all your grain, and in bags, too, ready to take to market. I also build the celebrated which took the Premium wherever it was exhibited.

It is self discharging, and also a perfect hand discharger. Any person who is able to drive a horse can rake with this Rake. The horse does all the labor. It is very simple in construction and not liable to get out of repair.

I also build all kinds of Horse Powers, Threshers, Grain Drills, Corn Shellers, Corn Planters, Straw and Fodder Cutters, &c. I use nothing but good and sound materials. I have an experience of seventeen years and feel competent to put work up right. All kinds of REPAIRING done on short notice and at reasonable rates. I will take in exchange for machines or work, ALL KINDS OF LUMBER. Come and give me a trial. Remember the place, Farmer's Department.

IS OUR WHEAT DETERIORATING?

We think that, without sufficient reason, the idea that our wheat is deteriorating has been generally accepted, and all investigation given up.

We do not think that the facts of the case will warrant the supposition that our wheat or any other crop is deteriorating. It is claimed, as a clear proof of its deterioration, that the average yield of wheat is growing less every year. This does not prove the case; for, if true, (which we do not admit,) the decreased average may be accounted for by another reason, which will more than cover the ground. Our wheat has more enemies to contend with now than it had fifty years ago, and it is but reasonable to suppose that the activity of the these increased enemies has much to do with the decreased yield. We yet often hear of crops which are quite as large as those of fifty years ago, and which clearly prove the opposite of the theory of deterioration of seed; for if the average failure was due to this cause, we would never have such crops. Some attribute the annual falling off to a change in the season or climate, by which it is unfitted for successful wheat culture. Nor do we think this correct, for no year passes without many crops of fine wheat in some parts of the State, or to narrow down still more closely, we may say in some parts of our own county. If the decrease was due to climatic causes, there should be no good fields alongside of poor ones, as the past season has shown to be possible.

We are not altogether prepared to admit that there has been a general falling off in the average crop, but if there has been, we are disposed to attribute it to the largely increased number of enemies which check the growth of the wheat crop. It would be as fair to charge the falling off of the yield of potatoes in many parts of Ohio and Indiana to deterioration, when we know the real cause is the Colorado beetle or potato bug.

We are firm in the belief that if the ravages of enemies known to wheat within the last fifty years are laid aside, we can now raise as much and as good wheat as they could then. We do not believe nor accept the cry of run-out crops, nor do we believe that such a falling off is due to seed alone. Our hope is that the destroyers of these enemies will continue to multiply and prevent further increase.

TO PREVENT CATTLE JUMPING. A correspondent of the Vermont Farmer thus describes an improved poke or jumping stick: First, put a piece across the horns. Then have a piece of hardwood board, one-half or three-fourths of an inch thick and about three feet long. Have a hole inserted in the bar across the horns in such a way that when this hard wood strip is inserted in it, running out over the back, as the animal naturally carries its head, the rear end will be just free of the back. Drive three or four shingle nails, ground sharp, into this, and, letting them come through three-fourths of an inch, so that as soon as the animal makes an effort to raise its head to jump the fence, the nails will soundly prick his back, and he will be apt to frisk his tail and start for some feed that is easier to be obtained. For cheapness and durability this arrangement is unequalled. It weighs less than three pounds; it is not in the way in traveling around, and when the animal lies down it is on one side, as it is natural for the animal to throw its head opposite to the side it is on. When they are feeding it is straight in the air. It will keep the animal to which it is applied where it belongs, sure.

CRANBERRIES. There are now in New Jersey, according to the most reliable authorities, 6,000 acres planted with cranberries. Two years from now these will be in full bearing. The value of this crop the past year is estimated at about $900,000. There will be large additions made to these acres during this year. Hundreds are now preparing to plant, and the price of improved as well as unimproved bogs has rapidly advanced. New Jersey has taken the lead in cranberry culture, as she did a few years ago with strawberries.—Vineland Independent.

THE Beatrice is the name of an early variety of Peach which ripens two weeks earlier than Hale's Early. It was produced by Mr. Thomas Rivers, of Sawbridgeworth Herts, England, and has been grown in this country only by Mr. Samuel G. Bilyieu, of Littleston, North Carolina. This new variety of Peach Tree is offered in the market at sixty dollars per hundred.

PIP IN CHICKENS.—Feed your chickens with raw, fine cut onions, once in three or four days, that will prevent pip. Color their drinking water, also, with tincture of iron occasionally.—Bread soaked in vinegar is healthy. Get all the egg shells you can for your fowls, keep the hen house clean, and give your fowls plenty of range during the day.

Household Department.

VARIOUS WAYS OF COOKING APPLES.

There is no article of food which can be prepared with such various ways and in such toothsome dishes, as apples. Potatoes can be cooked in many forms, but they cannot equal the preparations made from apples, neither do they contain as much brain food. Whether eaten raw or cooked, this fruit is generally popular, and is equally desirable and nutritious for young and old. Apples that are to be used for sauce should be pared, cored and put in cold water, unless cooked directly to keep them from discoloring. Add a little water to the porcelain kettle, or stew pan; cover closely and cook gently, not stirring them until the whole are softened, or you will cool them in lumps;—when soft, stir and mash, add a little butter, sweeten and strain through a colander.

APPLE SOUFFLE. Stew apples as directed for sauce, adding a little grated lemon peel and juice, and omitting the butter; line the sides and and bottom of a baking dish with them. Make a boiled custard with one pint of milk and two eggs, flavoring with lemon, and sweeten to taste. Let it cool and then pour into the centre of the dish. Beat the whites of two eggs to a stiff froth, (they can be left out of the custard,) and spread them over the top; sprinkle white sugar all over them, and brown in the oven. The stewed apple should be about half an inch thick on the bottom and side of the pudding dish.

APPLE AND TAPIOCA PUDDING.—Soak over night a quarter of a pound of tapioca; in the morning pour off the water, and add one quart and a gill of boiling water, sweeten and flavor with grated lemon peel and the juice of one lemon. Take six or eight tart apples, pare, core and place in a pudding dish; fill the center of each apple with sugar; then pour the liquid tapioca over the apples, filling the dish, and bake in a hot oven until the apples are perfectly soft. Serve cold with cream. If preferred, the apples can be sliced into the tapioca. If one desires to prepare it in haste, turn cold water on the tapioca, let it soak for fifteen minutes, then pour boiling water on, and stir it until it looks like thin starch.

APPLE MERINGUE.—Pare, core and stew ten good sized apples in as little water as possible; sweeten and add a small piece of butter; put into a pudding dish; cover the top with the beaten white of four eggs; sprinkle them thickly with powdered white sugar, and brown in the oven.

APPLE DUMPLING.—Make a nice crust with sour cream, saleratus and flour, line a quart bowl with it, buttering it well; fill up the bowl with sliced apples, sugar, grated lemon peel and juice. Cover with the crust, pinching the edge close together, flour a thick cotton cloth and tie it closely over the top of the bowl, and set it into boiling water, but not enough to cover the top of the bowl. Boil two hours, not letting the water go below the boiling point, and keeping it well filled in as it evaporates. Serve with a sugar and butter sauce, or with sugar and cream.

APPLE PUDDING. Grate ten large apples, paring them first; add to them four tablespoonfuls of melted butter; eight of sugar; grated peel and juice of one lemon; and the yolks and whites of six eggs beaten separately. Line a dish with puff paste, and bake like a custard pudding.

APPLE COBBLER. Pare, core and slice twelve large tart apples, add to them the juice of two lemons, grated peel of one; sweeten to taste, stew very slow for two hours; turn into a mold. When cold, serve with cream.

APPLE AND RICE. Core and pare as many apples as will fill a pudding dish; stew them so they are nearly soft. Boil half a teacup of rice, when nearly soft, add sugar, salt and a pint of milk. Place the apples in the pudding dish, turn the rice over them, filling up the core of each apple with sugar before putting in the rice. Bake until it is a nice brown. Serve with cream or without any sauce.

CURING PORK.

The Country Gentleman gives the following receipt for curing pork. It is vouched for as being one of the best, if not the best way to do it, and it is simple enough to be understood and practiced by any one:

As soon as my hogs are dressed and cool enough to be cut, I pack the side pieces in a barrel or cask, with plenty of salt on all sides of each piece, and when my barrel is full I immediately roll it to my pump and pump in water until I can see the water cease to sink in the vessel, or to moisten the salt on top of the cask. I then lay a flat stone, as large as the vessel will receive, on the contents, so as to keep the pork always under the salt or pickle. I put it in my cellar, covered so as to exclude the flies, and there it remains until a piece is wanted. Care must be taken to keep the meat under the pickle, otherwise it will rust.

AMMONIA AS A THERAPEUTIC AGENT.—A writer in The British Medical Journal states that in cases of whooping cough in the last stage (that is after the third week) he has had one ounce of the strongest liquid ammonia put into a gallon of boiling water in an open pan, and the steam kept up by means of half a brick made red hot throughout and put into the boiling water containing the ammonia, the pan being placed in the centre of a room into which the patients were brought as the ammoniated steam was passing off. This method, he says, was used in the evening, just before bed-time, and it proved so efficacious in abating the spasmodic attack, and after three or four days terminating the malady, as to establish, beyond any doubt, the great value of this mode of inhaling ammonia as a therapeutic agent in tranquilizing the nervous system in whooping cough.

WATERING PLANTS. One of the most important points in window-gardening is watering. There should be plenty of cracks in the bottom of the vessel, so as to let the water pass off rapidly, and thus insure perfect drainage. This is one of few rules without any exception, as there is not a single plant suitable for window culture which will flourish if the water be allowed to stagnate in the bottom of the vessel.

THE AUTUMN is the true season for enjoyment in the United States. Our springs are cold and wet, our summers hot, and our winters changeable. But the American Fall has no rival on earth. How glorious are the woods, with their crimson and yellow leaves, their red vines, their late flowers, their sparkling berries and brown nuts. What cheerful melody there is in the cool waters that bubble over the ledges of rock. What keen blue there is in the sky. What luxury there is in the frosty air. The farmer rejoices over his harvests. The children gloat like misers over the stores which they have ravished from the hillsides. The sportsman, with gay heart, stirs the quail and rabbit from the stubble. It is the season for rosy fires; for cider and cakes and nuts. These days are not the saddest of the year.

A SHORT time since the Middle Park Stud, in England, the gigantic and celebrated breeding establishment of the late Mr. Blenkiron, was broken up, and the animals sold at auction. They consisted of 13 stallions, 197 brood mares and 129 foals, in all 339 head, and the aggregate sales amounted to five hundred and seventy-five thousand five hundred and seventy-five dollars in gold, or an average per head of $1,512. Blair Athol sold for $63,000, and a famous mare, Seclusion, brought $12,500 in gold. The National Stud Company was the chief purchaser. But, for it, the foreign demand would have taken most of these valuable horses.

APPLE TREE. The city of Wilmington claims the honor of growing the largest apple tree in the country.—There is now standing in the lawn of Judge Wales, on the old Shallcross farm, a Pennock apple tree one hundred years old and measuring in circumference at the ground 16 feet, 3 feet from the ground it measures eight feet; two feet higher up the size is 9 feet in circumference. One limb is 8 feet 5 inches around it, and two others are 4 feet.

A DOLLY VARDEN PIE: Take about four yards of light dough, gather it up in tucks and flounces, crimp the edges, and fill up with fruit, then lay on the overskirt, fasten it with buttons of dough, connected with frills of the same, and you will have a tasteful and elegant pie, only you must eat it, not wear it.

THE Boston Post says: "Georgia has a hale and hearty citizen who has been struck by thirty-two minnie balls, one mortar shell, one shrapnel, one three-inch conical, struck by lightning, bitten by a rattlesnake, and chased by a mad dog."

ORGANS AND MELODEONS.
These Instruments stand unrivaled by anything found in this country or in Europe, as is admitted by all impartial judges. The most eminent Pipe Organ Builders and Performers, the first to discover excellence in reed Tone, pronounced them vastly superior to all others for exceedingly quick articulation and round Tone, the essential feature in instruments of this class. We invite the severe scrutiny and criticism of all.
PATENT VOX HUMANA TREMOLO.
This latest and most wonderful invention (so acknowledged by all leading artists) will be found only in the Estey Instruments. In attempting to describe the effect of this stop, we are at loss for language. Its beauties cannot be written, but must be heard to be appreciated. By this stop an ordinary performer can produce an effect which requires a life time of practice for an artist upon a violin. It entirely changes the reed Tone, giving the sympathetic sweetness of the human voice, making it so melodious and pure that it never fails to enchant the listener.
THE HARMONIC ORGAN
for Churches, Public Halls and Parlors has a powerful Sub-Bass with independent reeds, Harmonic attachment and Vox Humana Tremolo, and is believed to be the most powerful reed organ made, being nearly equal to a Pipe Organ of three times the cost.

THE undersigned has obtained from the United States, Letters Patent, dated March 26, 1872, for an Improvement in Preparing Fertilizers
FROM EARTH, &C.,
which he desires to bring to the attention of the public, especially that portion engaged in farming. The new process, which is simply burning earth in a kiln, has been thoroughly tested and proven a full success. It is, besides, mode of fertilizing land yet discovered. The kiln is constructed at small cost, and but little fuel is required to operate it. Every farmer should have this invaluable right. In these days of high prices for lime, guanos and phosphates, this improvement should be taken hold of by all who feel the need of fertilizing the soil.
THE CHEAPEST
Farm, Township, County and State Rights are now offered for sale. For further information, address SAMUEL BROWN,
